

Customer Service Appreciation Week

Why it Matters?

A customer service team has the critical job of representing a brand to customers. When a customer has a question or complaint, it's the customer service team they'll reach out to. Whether from a call center, in an office, or from a remote location, this team interacts with the general public on a daily basis. This can be rewarding but also very challenging.

How to Leverage Promotional Products

Customer service representatives serve on the frontline and provide a face and name to a brand when interacting with customers. Use Customer Service Week to let your customer service representatives know how much you appreciate their efforts with these great gift ideas.
